READ—the following paper:—

G.O., dated 31st July 1891, No. 588, Educational.

Read—the following papers:—

From the Director of Public Instruction, dated 23rd May 1891, No. 5901.

Endorsement of the Public Works Department, dated 16th June 1891, No. 385 D.

ABSTRACT.—Transferring note by the Chief Engineer, Public Works Department, dated 16th June 1891.

Order—dated 31st July 1891, No. 588, Educational.

The Government agrees with Captain Love in thinking that any extension of the practical course beyond two years would be undesirable, and, for the present and until the workshop sanctioned in G.O., dated 25th June 1891, No. 481, Educational, has been constructed, no change in the existing arrangements seems called for.

When, however, the new workshop is in full working order, it will become possible to reduce the time spent by the students at the workshops of the Public Works Department from one year to six months, and, if this be done, there will remain eighteen months, during which the students can be employed in Public Works divisions.

2. As to the distribution of the eighteen months following the training in the Public Works Department shops, it is not possible to accept the arrangement proposed by the Director of Public Instruction, seeing that the Railway authorities object to receive students for training and that the only Road divisions are in parts of the country to which students could not be sent; the constant moving of students from one division to another is also undesirable. On the whole the Government considers it desirable that the eighteen months' course following the six months' training in the workshop should be divided between a nine-months' course in the Consulting Architect's division and a similar period in an Irrigation division.

3. As to travelling and subsistence allowance during the practical course, the Government considers that they should be granted at the present rates, but that they should be given only when the students are sent away from the Presidency town.

4. The Director of Public Instruction will revise article V (1) (b) and (2) (b) and article IX of the Rules of the College of Engineering in the light of the above remarks and will submit the revised draft for the approval of Government.
